

The Business:

Reimage is a market leader in web-based diagnostic repair tools for IT professionals and home users. The company, seeing the drastic rise in costs for PC repair, joined other industry leaders to tackle this multi-billion dollar industry and make it available online. As a result of their intensive R&D efforts, the first web-based diagnostic and repair tool designed specifically for ease of use was introduced. The reimage solution drastically reduces the time per repair, and dramatically improves repair quality.

Until recently, resolving PC problems required various tools and the experienced hands-on technician. This led reimage to forge ahead and develop technology that would take the complexity out of resolving many of these problems and return the fate of the PC back to the individual. This brought about the reimage tool that only requires an Internet connection and a mere 30 minutes for the automated process to complete.

The reimage tool analyses the operating system for problems with the file structure and replaces the faulty or missing files or components. The end result is a refreshed system operating with high efficiency.

The Challenge:

Since reimage operates on an international scale, the demand for their products is becoming even greater. The wide range of clients includes private users to corporate clients
